

Potent Promise

Bioxil, a new beauty brand developed by EIG, which also offers Dermalogica and Averine cosmetics, has opened its first outlet at Vivocity. It has skincare and supplements, but the star attraction is 2 Weeks Miracle. It's a skincare regime that comes in two variants: Ageless Miracle for anti-ageing, which comprises of four products – a toner, serum, cream and eye cream; and Clear White Miracle that lightens and brightens complexions, which has a spot corrector instead of eye cream. Both promise visible results in 14 days.

There are no preservatives in 2 Weeks Miracle, so the products cannot be stocked on the shelves. They must be ordered in the store or online, and only then will a lab in Korea manufacture and ship them directly to you. Priced at $480, the range is packaged in four handy one-week sets. The first fortnight's supply is delivered initially, and the second fortnight's arrives two weeks later. Once opened, each bottle has to be used within 10 days.

Our verdict: The serums and creams glide on comfortably, are easy to use, and have no distinct smell. Within a week of using the Clear White Miracle, our complexion brightened visibly and the Ageless Miracle really soothed and kept mature skin well hydrated and plumped.

Shape up

Clarins Shaping Facial Lift Wrap, $70, is a rinse-off mask that targets bloatedness and puffiness caused by water retention. It promises to get rid of excess water as well as toxins, and define facial contours in just 10 minutes. The cream uses Chinese barley, ginkgo biloba and white clay to balance skin's fluid, refine its texture and stimulate drainage.

For a pampering treatment that deals with puffiness, the Clarins Shaping Facial Lift from Tianmu Mountains, $140 for 60 minutes, incorporates the product in a facial that includes a massage to boost micro-circulation and reduce puffiness, giving you a slimmer face and more defined jawline instantly.

Young, fit and firm

Just like how exercise keeps your body flexible, agile and young, Jurlique's Biodynamic Beauty range, $64-$137, promises to keep skin fit from the inside by optimising cell regeneration and strengthening defence against external aggression like UV and pollution.

This range specifically addresses signs of ageing by speeding up skin renewal and comprises an eye cream, refining treatment, serum and a night lotion. This is also the first range to combine marine extracts with the brand's usual botanical ingredients for more potent and effective anti-ageing. Blue algae extract, one of the main ingredients in the range, is known to have the skin-firming ability of retinol without causing any irritation.
